

Metrodome Bio

Metrodome isn't your average guy. Ask most people when they started DJing and producing and they'll probably say in their teens when they got into music. Metrodome was mixing tunes when he was 4 years old on his Dad's CD's.

When he was six he was using cubase and cutting and scratching on his first pair of Technics. By the time he was 8 he was out playing his first gigs, always neatly turned out in a full suit and tie.

Aged 12 he landed himself a residency at APE in Manchester. At 13 he'd had enough of DJing and took some time out to learn guitar and piano. When he was sixteen and realised that women, drugs and booze were the coolest things out there he decided that the easiest way to get all three was through his old friends the decks.

Now aged 20 with a string of top secret releases on the cards for 2014, you could call him a veteran in the game.